Gentlemen:

We refer to your letter dated February 14, 2017 requesting for clarification and/or confirmation of the news article entitled "PLDT eyes P70-B revenue this year" posted in The Philippine Star (Internet Edition) on February 14, 2017. The article reported in part that:

"DAVAO, Philippines – Revenue of PLDT Inc. from its home and enterprise businesses may reach P70 billion this year amid growing demand for digital offerings and solutions by households and firms.

PLDT chief revenue officer Eric Alberto told reporters during the launch of the new VITRO data center in Davao yesterday the telco is 'targeting double-digit growth. . . for the home and enterprise business.'

He said the double-digit growth in revenue from the two business segments would translate to an increase of about P7 to P10 billion from the over P60 billion in revenue generated last year, with the home and enterprise segments contributing more than P30 billion each.

The two business segments are expected to continue to drive the revenue growth of PLDT this year as well as in the coming years, amid increasing use of digital content by households as well as of solutions by firms.

'The drivers for the growth in 2017 and even perhaps the next couple of years would be the enterprise and the home considering the wireless business has suffered to a large extent from massive competition and price erosion, not only on the mainstream talk and text, but it actually spilled over to the data bundle pricing,' Alberto said.

We wish to confirm that we expect the Home and Enterprise segments to continue to drive revenue increases for the PLDT group in 2017 as they are anticipated to register double digit growth this year. In addition, we foresee a recovery in the wireless consumer segment as we continue to pursue network superiority and our overarching objective of providing superior customer experience.

We wish to clarify, however, that we are currently finalizing our financial statements for 2016 and are scheduled to announce our full year results on 7 March 2017 at which time we can discuss in more detail our outlook for 2017.

As reference, the Home and Enterprise segments registered service revenues, net of interconnection costs, of P21.9 billion and P22.5 billion, respectively at the end of September 2016.

Respectfully yours,

FLORENTINO D. MABASA, JR.
Assistant Corporate Secretary
